

How refined... Hohoho-no-ho

By quoting "Shiratori Reiko de Gozaimasu"

This character is rich, but...

Gesture 1

They never say things like "Achoo, you bastard" or "Achoo, damn it."

They cover their mouths with both hands when they sneeze, and it's impossible to tell who they're saying "you bastard" or "damn it" to.

Gesture 2

She doesn't blow her nose in public

In that case, she goes to the toilet

Gesture 3

She flushes the toilet before using it, even at home, like a sound masking device

The image of a refined young lady

Having a piano at home and being able to play it doesn't fit the image of a young lady... from before the Showa era

These days, conversely, buying a used harmonica might be more expensive.

Nowadays, many digital pianos are the type that you assemble at home from an unassembled state.

I did that too... The shipping costs are extremely low that way... Sometimes the piano itself is even cheaper.

Sports also fit the image of a young lady.

Ballet, considering travel expenses, might actually be less expensive than other sports.

The postal coefficient is probably the highest in the world, so:

$$\text{Postal coefficient (\%)} = (\text{Postage} \div \text{Consumer spending}) \times 100$$

Following the formula below:

$$\text{Engel coefficient (\%)} = (\text{Food expenses} \div \text{Consumer spending}) \times 100$$

By the way, thanks to everyone's cooperation, the 2nd top page is still viewable.

It might be a load balancing effect, but you might be seeing the Takakuwa office page.

The 1st top page will be viewable on May 1st.
